CARL-GOTTHARD-LANGHANS-GESELLSCHAFT
BERLIN E.V.

Carl Gotthard Langhans
(1732–1808)

Master Builder and Royal Architect Architect of the Brandenburg Gate

We promote the appraisal, preservation, maintenance, protection, scholarly investigation and public understanding of Carl Gotthard Langhans' works

Carl Gotthard Langhans (1732–1808)
was a German master builder and Royal architect. His churches, palaces, grand houses, and theatres in Silesia (now Poland), Berlin and elsewhere belong to the earliest examples of Neoclassical architecture in Germany.

The aims of the Carl-Gotthard-Langhans-Gesellschaft Berlin e.V. are to: promote scholarly research and teaching about Langhans' life and works initiate and host public activities attain preservation, restoration and protection of his buildings and their environs cooperate with institutions in Germany and abroad name a street after Langhans and put up a memorial plaque in Berlin
